HSL is introducing e-procurement for purchase of Goods and Services through our Service Providers - M/s C1 India, Hyderabad and M/s KEONICS, Bangalore. Vendors wishing to do e-business with HSL are advised to go through the following information and attend the Free Training Sessions that will be scheduled at HSL or obtain the necessary guidance and help through the help desks of the Service Providers.

INTRODUCTION TO E-PROCUREMENT:

Buying and selling through Internet will be the business process of coming years. In order to be abreast of the changing times Buyers and Vendors will have to be more and more accessible for business on Internet. In every business, the daily exchange of goods, funds or documents or sharing sensitive product specifications globally, exposes sensitive and valuable information to potential damage or theft. Security breaches threaten profits and trust among business partners. Further the traditional manual methods are prone to delays which result in rising costs and business bottle-necks. On line business intends to avoid these pit falls and provide an environment for both the Buyer as well as the seller to transact business quickly, efficiently, cost-effectively and in a transparent manner

HSL's e-procurement is a step in this direction. HSL intends to float several important tenders for goods and services through the above Service Providers and Vendors are advised to make use of the Free Training Programme through the Help desks and those to be scheduled at HSL and for obtaining their Digital Signature Certificates which are mandatory for e-procurement. HSL's e-procurement modules provided by M/s KEONICS and C1 India will accept Digital Signature Certificates of TCS or (n) Code Solutions, which can be bought from the Registered Authority issuing DSCs.

This infrastructure is intended to enable the following by providing Digital Certificates to ensure-

Privacy : information exchanged should remain between the sender and the receiver.

Authentication : To engage in a business transaction, every party must be able to prove the other's identity.

Integrity : Once a party signs a transaction, it must be protected from tampering or forgery. The integrity of a transaction is particularly important in sales where prices, terms and quantities are agreed upon as a part of the deal.

Non Repudiation : After a transaction has been made, it cannot be revoked. Non repudiation prevents parties from denying their role in the exchange and making false claims about offers made or accepted by those involved in the transaction.
